

MODERN STORAGE HOUSE TO BE ERECTED

Above is a cut of the new quarters of the Fireproof Storage & Trust company and the Redman Moving & Storage company.

This building is to be erected on Fourth West, between First and Second South streets, and will have a frontage of 100 feet by 140 feet in depth, and will be four stories high. The first floor will contain the main office, to be finished in marble; a large vault containing safety deposit boxes, as well as larger compartments for the storage of silverware, etc. Adjoining the vault will be a fireproof cold storage room for fine tapestry, etc. The second floor space will be divided into dustproof piano rooms, trunk rooms and a large room for the storage of automobiles. The next floor will be cut up into small rooms to the number of 300, so that each lot of goods will be in a separate fireproof compartment. The building will be built of reinforced concrete and will be strictly fireproof throughout, and will cost about $60,000. One of the features of this building will be a large elevator that will hold the van loaded with goods to any floor, thus obviating the necessity of handling the goods more than one time.

pockets. Fancy a man playing hopscotch on his head. What's more, saw a pig shooting the chutes. No, I'm not kidding. Remember, it's Ringling's circus I'm talking about. They're the boys. Before I die I expect to go to their show and see a pig thread a needle and play on a Jew's harp. "When the elephants enter into the ring I got a good look at one of them. He had a straight forehead, denoting capacity for small detail. And you bet he was a finished performer. When he wasn't doing his tricks he was holding on to the tail of another elephant. There's minute detail for you. He had full temples. That denotes music, and later he played on a horn. He had eyes set well apart, and a fullness beneath them, which indicates language. Now we all know the elephant lacks the power of speech—more's the pity—so this quality expressed itself in versatility and well balanced mind. That's why he can stand on his head. "Oh, you'll see wonders enough next Monday to hold you for a while. There are no wife murders here—no Mrs. Somebody's experiences, no problems to solve—just pure enjoyment. For me it's exit Shaw, enter Ringling. I'm going again. Here's a couple of tickets to 'Mrs. Roughhouse's Defense,' if you care to use them. No? All right."

Dedicates Organ Work to J. J. McClellan

The following letter from the leading organist of Philadelphia, and one of the best composers in the country, Russell King Miller, to J. J. McClellan, in which Mr. Miller dedicates his great organ work to Mr. McClellan, exhibits a feeling of pride in which all music lovers in Utah will share. Mr. McClellan has accepted the dedication of the "Concert Overture" with much pleasure. "My Dear Mr. McClellan—I have just finished the manuscript of a concert overture for the organ which I like, and which it has given me great pleasure to dedicate to you. Hoping that this dedication will meet with your approval, and with kindest regards, believe me, Sincerely yours,

"RUSSELL KING MILLER."

"P. S. I regret that I will not have the pleasure of hearing you play the beautiful tabernacle organ this summer."

CIRCUS VERSUS DRAMA

"You may say what you like about the drama being elevating," said Colonel O'Donnell, of Tennessee last night, "but I've got my own idea, and I'll bet nine men out of every ten in the state of Utah share it. For pure enjoyment, give me the circus."

"They say the drama's purpose is to uplift, and yet I went to a play the other night in which a man loved some other fellow's wife and, in order to clear the track so he could marry her, he killed her husband. By some sort of philosophy the playwright made a hero out of the fellow, and I'm darned if the audience did not take to him. Do you see anything uplifting in that? I don't. Why, a man is likely to go home from the theatre nowadays saturated with false philosophy and Shawism and run off with the hired girl."

"On the other hand, take the circus. Look at the crowds—what an opportunity for studying our fellow man! And that's everything. Pope says, 'The proper study of mankind is man,' and I'll bet he thought of that while sitting on the bleachers at the circus. You enter the menagerie, and what a book of wonders lies open before you! You smell the sawdust and that's healthy; the halm from the pine forests."

"You sit in the vast arena, surrounded by a sea of happy faces. Everybody feels young. You see a lot of fine, muscular specimens of manhood streaming from the dressing room, and it makes you throw out your chest and breathe deep. And the hearty and innocent laughter you get is better than all the medicine in town. You see the healthful benefits of the circus are many."

"Now imagine yourself at the theatre. First thing they do is to lower the lights on you. You sit between a fat woman and an obese fella, with a French twist in front of you and some dame in the rear in disposing of her bonnet runs a hat pin through the back of your chair and into your spine. If you don't jump quick enough, if you get thirsty does any one come around with red lemonade? I should say not."

"If a man is blind the theatre is no place for him. If he is deaf he'll find no entertainment there unless they have a moving picture machine. How about the circus? Why, it makes little difference to the deaf man, and the blind man can listen to the music and hear the animals growl, and he can shout when the whips crack and have a fine time generally. Yes, by George, let a man be deaf and blind, and the smell of the sawdust and the animals will revive in his memory the happiest days of his life. The lemonade may be colorless to him, but, ah, the glorious peanut is the same as of yore."

"And the wonder of it all. Why, I went to Ringling Brothers' circus the other afternoon and I saw a horse take off its boots—yes, sir—and blow out a candle and go to bed. And I saw seven of the most beautiful women I ever looked at flying in the air. That's what I said—flying. And they did it, too, and a hundred doves flew to them, and perched on their white arms. I saw a fellow by the name of Patty Jump and walk on his head, with his hands in his

TWO THOUSAND ORGANISTS ASSEMBLE IN NEW JERSEY

Fully 2,000 organists from the United States and Canada will attend the national convention of organists to be held at Ocean Grove, N. J., during the first two weeks of August. A new Hope-Jones organ, the largest in the world, has recently been installed in the grand Auditorium, which seats 10,000 people. A brilliant program has been prepared for the ten days, which includes organ recitals by eminent men, concerts by Mme. Schumann-Heink, David Bispham and other great artists. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be given by a chorus of 700 voices under the leadership of Tall Esen Morgan, the director of music at Ocean Grove. A concert will be given by a chorus of 1,000 children. There will be lectures, papers and discussions each day, and on the last evening a banquet will be given in the Young People's temple.

Organist J. J. McClellan has been especially invited to attend, or to send some words of greeting in case of his not being able to be present.

Ocean Grove is on the Atlantic coast, fifty miles below New York, and adjoins the city of Asbury Park. There are over 500 hotels and boarding houses and the towns are provided with all modern conveniences. Special summer excursion rates are offered by the railroads.

The convention will inaugurate a national movement to turn life into a musical drama, so that the people can hear the best of music at a nominal cost. In the free daily organ recitals at the tabernacle, Salt Lakeers enjoy one of the chief aims of the present congress of organists.

"Baby's Never Ill"—Remedy FREE

Summer after summer Dr. Caldwell is in receipt of hundreds of letters from mothers all over the country thanking him for keeping their children in good health these hot days. The way is simple for any mother. If the child breaks out with sores, if it scratches itself, if it has no appetite and doesn't sleep well, if its bowels are constipated or too loose, do not become alarmed, but try a dose at bedtime of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPISIN. There's no remedy so effective in the digestive ailments of children, and so well liked by them for its pleasant taste and non-gripping, than this very same DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPISIN. Ask the druggist who has your confidence and he will tell you that more mothers are buying this remedy today than any other. It is not to be compared to the ordinary laxative, because this contains tonic properties that help to build up the child; nor is it to be compared to salts and purgative waters, for they do but temporary good, nor to tablets or pills, which often gripe and are difficult to take. It is especially the right remedy for women and old folks, because of its gentle action. Your druggist will sell you a bottle for 50 cents or $1.00, according to size.

Those who have never yet used DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPISIN would like to make a test of it before buying in the regular way of their druggist and obtain a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE either for themselves or any member of their family by sending name and address to the doctor. The sample will be sent to your home free of charge. In this way you can find out what it will do without cost. Also, if the case presents difficulties that doctors and other remedies seem unable to overcome, write a letter to Dr. Caldwell explaining how the person suffers and he will give you his best MEDICAL ADVICE, based on half a century of experience in stomach, liver and bowel diseases, without charge. Women who have children should read for "SUGGESTIONS TO MOTHERS," containing the doctor's advice on diet, hygiene, etc., in hot weather—a very important subject. The address is

Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 518 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.
